Legislature Prorogues Under Provincial Police Protection

The Fourth Session of the Sixth Legislature of Alberta was brought to a close under unprecedented circumstances, the Legislative Building virtually in a state of siege. Members, officials, press representatives, were carefully scrutinized by a force of police as they entered for the session of Thursday evening; all others were denied entrance. Such precautions were taken following rumors that the unemployed planned to filter into the corridors and galleries in small groups and when in sufficient numbers to interrupt the proceedings. On Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday afternoons they had marched in considerable numbers to the House but had been refused admission though their deputations had been listened to. Now apparently they had decided on a change of tactics and were strong enough at 7.30 a small knot of unemployed sauntered up to the main entrance to be met by an impressive line of determined-looking Provincial Police. As more of the discontented came up some murmuring could be heard but no offer to storm the approaches was made. Many citizens who had come to see the prorogation ceremonies were necessarily disappointed but they may look forward to next year's closing.

The two days of the adjourned session were indeed crowded for the members managed to get in much useful bill passing as well as to listen to extensive debates on the Donatville Society and the Edmonton City Charter. Discussion of the activities of the Donatville Society under the provisions of the Alberta Co-operative Credit Act and of working of the Co-op. Marketing Associations Guaranteed that took up a great deal of time. The report of the public accounts committee showed laxity of supervision in the Donatville affair but expressed the hope that under new control such conditions would not occur again. This did not satisfy the Liberals, Geo. Webster, Calgary, and J. W. Frame, Athabasca, who offered an amendment definitely censuring the Treasury Department, demanding more care in the future, and asking an immediate audit of every credit society in the province. The amendment was defeated 44-9 but an amendment by F. J. White, Labor leader, requiring an annual audit of all such societies was carried by the same numbers.

Debate on the amendments to the Edmonton City Charter took up much time and called forth some impressive oratory. Clause 10 caused all the trouble. At the last civic elections the citizens of Edmonton by a large majority agreed with the demand of the retail clerks for a Wednesday half holiday eleven months in the year. The City Council decided however to have the Wednesday half holiday from May to August and to give the clerks a 5-1-2 day week for the rest of the time without closing the stores. The Assembly in Committee was faced with the dilemma: whether to pass the Clause as requested by the City Council letting it take the responsibility at the next city elections or whether it should take into account the clearly expressed will of the people. Mr. Lymburn, who along with Col. Weaver championed the cause of the City Council, thought that the people hadn't really understood the question at issue. He caused some ironical merriment by saying that the people had not followed the issue in the editorial columns of the Edmonton Journal. To the Attorney-General's statement that the question was one for the storekeepers to decide and that shorter hours might cause some to fail, the labor member for Edmonton C. L. Gibbs, made an eloquent reply, protesting against such "blue-ruin" arguments. The Committee decided to leave it to the City Council by a vote of 22-21, a vote which divided the cabinet and the U.F.A. party about evenly. Since votes in Committee are not recorded, Fred White moved, when he came in for that third reading, to re-commit it to the committee to strike out the Clause. This manoeuvre led to a division in which his motion was lost 74-2, only one U.F.A. member, Mr. Washburn, Stony Plain, now voting with the Labor group.

The Labor leader, F. J. White, took occasion on Thursday evening to pay tribute to the Government for its handling of the unemployment situation. Alberta had done more than any other province to meet the difficulty. The Labor members had visited the camps and had found the conditions satisfactory. Mr. White asked that the camps be kept open a little longer and advised an appeal to the federal government. Mr. Brown in reply stated that the camps were being closed for lack of patrons. While the unemployed would work in the city for $1 a day, only 1 in 25 would go to other country to do similar work for $10.50 a week with board at $7. The aid given to date had cost the province over a quarter of a million in addition to what the cities had paid out. The premier thought that some value had been received for the money. The present trouble was due to professional organizers who had come in from San Francisco and Toronto. The Government was not taking any steps against these men so as not to give any provocation for violence.

Amendments to Bill 14, An Act respecting the Transfer of the Natural Resources of Alberta were raised without difficulty. These additional clauses permit the Province to appeal to the Supreme in regard to public lands granted by the Dominion prior to the formation of the Province. The passage of the bill "respecting the Education of Soldiers' Children" was a distinct triumph for Col. Weaver, Cons. member for Edmonton. Following his plea early in the session a committee of inquiry was formed with Mr. Reid as chairman. The committee reported such provision being made in Sask., B. C., and in Ontario. A bill was then put through authorizing a grant of $10,000 which may be used to aid soldiers' children to secure secondary education.

Mr. Baker, Minister of Education, in withdrawing the now famous School Bill a second time explained the Government policy with respect to it. Last session, he reminded the House, a bill had been introduced having as its important feature the compulsory formation of larger units of administration. A new bill with larger units permissive only had been introduced this year with the result that both approval and disapproval had been voiced. Since such an important measure required greater support from the people it was again withdrawn. Before the next session conferences would be held with representatives of the "Trustees" and Teachers' organizations as well as with others involved in an effort to draft a satisfactory bill. Mr. Baker then introduced an amending bill to the School Act since recent decisions of the courts had destroyed the difference between summary dismissal of teachers and dismissal after 30 days' notice. The bill, was passed through quickly, assuring teachers of 30 days notice as formerly prevailed.

Other Acts of considerable interest were: An act enabling the Dept. of Agriculture to buy pure-bred bulls for resale to farmers' organizations; and an act to extend the privilege of tax rebate to users of gasoline for domestic heating and lighting. At a late hour the Sergeant-at-Arms announced the Lieutenant-Governor's arrival. In full uniform and accompanied by his military aides His Honor entered the House and seated himself on the Throne. He then gave the royal assent to some 25 bills transforming them into acts. The House was then prorogued in due form.

No announcement was made as to the possibility of an election. The Premier did make a graceful valedictory to Mr. Shaw which is interpreted by some as an indication of an appeal to the people. Anybody's guess is as good as any other, the decision probably depending on what Mr. King does about a federal election. As the members left the building there was no sign of unemployed or of police. The peace of Edmonton at midnight prevailed over all.

ANNUAL REPORT ILLUSTRATION FARM

The report from the government supervisor who visited the illustration farm last week end is truly unstinted in praise of the work of the local operator, Mr. G. C. Boyd, on the farm and that gentleman stated that during the 1929 season Mr. Boyd had proven the best operator in charge of any illustration farm in the province. The report shows that although the seeding date last year was some twelve days earlier than the previous year, owing to light rainfall, the resultant crop was of course disappointing, less than two and a quarter bushels in all being the total rainfall for the season.

"Much of the crop in the district was so short that it could not be cut. On the Station the fields were all light, only three three fields were able to show a profit and none of the rotations did that well."

"Field 'A', sown to Marquis wheat, was a good example of what results. When every other wheat field on the Station was burning up with heat and drought, this field remained comparatively green. At threshing time the yields were even more interesting in that four other fields of wheat averaged 2 bushels per acre while 'A' yielded 15 bushels."

There was no apparent reason for such a difference, but by consulting previous records, we found however, that this field had been seeded to sweet clover and alfalfa in 1920, the sweet clover having lived its time died out, but the alfalfa continued until 1925 when it was broken up. Two crops of wheat and then followed the 1929 crop. It would indeed be interesting to know just what influence those five year old alfalfa roots played in producing a profitable crop in this field. On account of the extreme drought and the corresponding light yields of the different rotations it is hard to say.

Of the hay fields, alfalfa was the only crop cut. It yielded a little better than half a ton per acre—about one-third the yield of the previous year. While the yields shown in this report places this Station at, or near, the bottom of the list in point of yields, it seems only fair that attention should be called to the fact that the average yield of wheat for ten years, including 1929, has been 26.8 after fallow and 21 after stubble which is quite a creditable average. During the past year Mr. Boyd sold to 27 farmers of his district, the following seed grain: 110 bushels Ryegrass, 120 bushels Marquis and 200 bushels Garnet wheat; 1700 bushels Banner Oats and 75 bushels O.A.C. 21 barley. — Wainwright Star.

NITRO CULTURE

The Times has arranged with the School of Agriculture, Vermilion for a limited supply of Nitro Culture for treating Sweet Clover seed. All Sweet Clover sown on land that has not had clover on before should be treated with this culture. The treatment is very simple and the cost is only 35c for a bottle that will treat 60 lbs. of seed. Don't wait till you are ready to sow your seed before getting the culture, or let us know about when you will need it and we will arrange to have it here when needed. One farmer ordered 50 bottles and another 28 bottles this week, so if you leave it till the last minute and a few orders like this come in there may be a slight delay. Farmers wishing to order the culture direct can do so by sending the order accompanied by Postal Order or Money Order for the amount ordered, to the School of Agriculture, Vermilion, Alta., and it will be delivered postage paid.

Don't Be a Goose

A teacher asked her class to write an essay on geese. This essay was turned in by an eight year old miss: "Geese is a low, heavy set bird which is most meat and feathers. His head sits on one end and he sits on the other. He ain't got no feathers on his feet, he's got a balloon in his stomach to keep him from sinking. Some geese when they get big have curls on their tails and is called ganders. Ganders don't have to sit and hatch, but just eat and loaf and go in swimming. If I was a goose I'd rather be a gander."

EASTER GREETING

Welcome, O Children, welcome, Springtime is growing near; So hasten, O Children, welcome, The birds will soon be here.

Now listen, O Children, listen, Easter time is here; So hasten, Dear Children, hasten, To church far and near.

And listen to the message Your pastor has for you in store.

He will tell you the old Old story of ages years ago, Of our Master and his angels, Who lives as the story is told.

Now it will be a new, new story Of our Master who has died, When your pastor will explain it Of our Savior who was crucified.

It will seem like a new, new story Of our Savior who was laid In the tomb with a stone upon it, With an angel by his side.

So hasten, O Children, hasten, To churches far and near, And listen to the message Your pastor has for you in store.

Now this early Easter morn Long before the bright of day, Christ rose from the grave, The brightest of all they say.

Arose to live for you and I Arose to save us when we die; Arose to lead us when we stray, Arose to live when we are laid, Arose to live when the world is still.

So hasten, O Children, hasten, To Churches far and near, And listen to the message Your pastor has for you in store.

And welcome, O Children, welcome Spring is on the way, So welcome, dear Children, welcome This Holy, Holy Easter Day.

SPRING CLEANING

It is not too early to send in household articles such as curtains, drapes, rugs, table covers, dresser scarves, bed spreads, elderdowns, etc. for dry cleaning.

It is also well to consider the dry cleaning of articles which are to be put away until next winter.

It is a fact that moths will not readily attack articles that have been scientifically dry cleaned.

The Stumbling Block

Whatever may be the outcome of the naval conference in session in London, and at the time of writing it is still problematical and obscure, the fact that leading statesmen of the world, engrossed, as they are, with many domestic and other problems, and carrying heavy responsibilities, have for months doggedly persevered in their efforts to find common ground upon which a reduction of armaments can be brought about, is, in itself, one of the most hopeful signs for world peace.

Not many years ago such a conference would have, long ere this, broken up in an open confession of failure, with national feelings more embittered than ever, and a still more feverish renewal of warlike preparations on the part of all nations. Even if the present conference does not succeed in reaching a formal and unanimous agreement, the persistency, the intensity with which those participating have sought for a solution is encouraging and full of hope for ultimate future success.

The proceedings of the conference as they have dragged along week after week, have proven the sincerity of the statements made by the various representatives at the opening session, namely, that they and the governments they represent are keenly desirous of reaching an agreement, that they are anxious to make future wars impossible, that they believe in the letter and spirit of the Kellogg peace pact, and to that end are willing to make what they consider sacrifices to achieve a reduction in armaments and a consequent lessening of the possibilities of war and of the burden of taxation imposed upon their people.

This sincerity of purpose has been demonstrated over and over again. When any particular formula or plan was found to be unacceptable in any particular to any one nation, the others sought for amendments that would meet the objections raised. When the objections urged were found to be insurmountable, that formula or plan was discarded, and something different brought forward. Step by step, in sub-conferences innumerable, by direct negotiations between those countries which were farthest apart in their views, difficulties were gradually overcome.

Just how much has been accomplished, the world does not yet know; perhaps little of a really definite nature. But the whole effort has been beneficial. It is beyond all question that the nations now understand and appreciate each other's viewpoints and difficulties better than ever before, because it is quite evident that the negotiations have been conducted with great frankness, and yet with an absence of that bitterness and ill-feeling which existed in past years. Whatever the present outcome, the way, we repeat, has been paved to ultimate success.

And what is the obstacle to immediate success, assuming that it cannot at this time be achieved? It is that the centuries-old racial dislikes, suspicions, superiority complexes, and religious differences still project themselves and live in this twentieth century of the Christian era. Each and every nation indignantly denies and rejects the idea that they entertain, desire or propose any policy or act of aggression against any other nation. But each and every nation is, nevertheless, demanding security against other nations. In a word, while professing their own honesty of purpose, they remain doubtful and suspicious of their neighbors.

Here in Canada we may find it somewhat difficult to understand this attitude, and be inclined to question the sincerity of those who adopt it. But if we pause for a moment and ponder over the problem a bit, we will, perhaps, come to appreciate the European viewpoint somewhat better. And in doing so we, too, may learn a lesson of importance to ourselves, our communities, and our Dominion.

After all, what is the chief cause of friction, ill-will, bitterness and suspicion right here in Canada, and in our own community? Does it not arise out of differences in racial origin, different languages employed, differing forms by and through which we worship the same God? Are we not suspicious and distrustful of our neighbors simply because their racial origin differs from our own, because their mother tongue is not ours, because their religious thought and church observances differ from ours? We feel that they should conform to our ideas and ways of thought, and because we feel this, we imagine that they, in turn, are trying to impose their ways upon us.

It is the same European nightmare in a somewhat milder form. We want and demand security. Instead of armies and navies, we place reliance in laws, regulations, prohibitions. France would bring all Europe to her way of thinking, Germany to her way, we, in Canada, seem to demand complete assimilation, absolute uniformity. It is the same principle. And it is a principle if persisted in, and carried to its logical conclusion, results in ill-feeling, bitterness and strife, and makes peace impossible of attainment.

A broader education, a truer appreciation of the fact that all men are brothers, that a man's man for a that, a nearer approach to the spirit of the Christ, is an essential of world disarmament and peace, just as it is an essential to community betterment and national peace and progress. Demands for security will only be unnecessary and die when we no longer entertain suspicions and fears of those against whom we would arm in one form or another.

War Restrictions Raised

One of the last remaining relics of the Great War has been abolished by the League of Nations. This is a series of import and export restrictions which were enacted by the various nations during the war to prevent exportation of raw materials and manufactured articles necessary for them to carry on the conflict. As the years rolled by and the regulations were not repealed world trade was seriously hampered.

Noted Flier Performs Thrilling Exploit

Australian Ace Forces Machine To Rise In Forest Clearing

Captain Charles Kingsford D. Smith, the Australian ace who flew from the United States to Australia in 1928, has just performed one of the most thrilling exploits of his career.

He is now the director of an air line. Recently when one of the company's triple-engined machines made a forced landing in a forest clearing near Bonalbo, Northern New South Wales, it seemed that the plane could be moved only by being dismantled.

Smith went to the scene, repaired the damaged under-carriage, tied the plane's tail to a tree and set his engines going full speed. When the machine lifted from the ground a farmer cut the rope and the plane flashed away like a rocket.

Even then the straining plane, bucking like a broncho, could barely rise above the towering forest trees. A topmost bough tore the fuselage from underneath the fuselage and the machine trembled like a wounded bird, but it kept up and Smith got it safely to the airfield.

Drummond Was a Telegrapher

Reminds When Well Beloved Habitant

Post Held Down Night Trick

Dr. Drummond going into the parishes of ancient Quebec, attending the sick, listening to old stories and songs, with his eyes and ears always open and his sympathy tuned to catch the simple life of the habitant in its many phases, is a familiar figure in Canadian literature. Not so well-known is the Drummond of the seventies, before he wrote "The Wreck of the 'L' Bateau,'" "The Wreck of the 'L' Bateau,'" and the other duties that have become so well-beloved. In the seventies, Drummond was an undergraduate at McGill College, studying medicine and attending lectures all day and at night operating a telegraph key.

"Bill held down the same trick on the Associated Press wire as I did later on," says Thomas Rodger, special representative of the Canadian Pacific Railways' telegraph and telephone system, who has since retired after 56 years' service with the system. "Bill was on the night trick necessarily, as he was attending McGill College during the day." Rodger recalls Drummond's forsaking the press wire on receiving his degree and going into practice and remembers the favor with which the public received the first book of poems, "The Habitant." "My memories of Bill Drummond will be vivid to the end," says the veteran, "especially as I have often seen him haranguing with the French-Canadian linen in the broken French-English patois he used in his writing."

The Wealth Of India

Apart from the Indian States there are probably many more millionaires in British India than in America, and they are all, or nearly all, Indians. But these fortunate enormous as they are in the aggregate, are unquestionably a mere fraction of the still more marvellous wealth which exists in the shape of gold and silver hoards throughout the vast domain of India, whether British India, or the Indian States.

Defy Curse Of Pharaohs

The king and queen of the Belgians have defied the reputed curse of the Pharaohs. With Howard Carter, excavator of the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen, King Albert and Queen Elizabeth visited the tomb in the Valley of the Kings, and neither indicated any bad luck was expected. Thereafter the king walked nearly two miles from his yacht into Karnak.

The Family Physician.—The good doctor is always worth his fee. But it is not always possible to get a doctor just when you want him. In such cases, common sense suggests the use of reliable home remedies, such as Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, which is wonderfully effective in easing inflammatory pains and healing cuts, scratches, bruises and sprains. The presence of this remedy in the family medicine chest saves many a fee.

Standing Up Under Loss

Takes More Than Market Crash To Down Canadians

During the recent market crash, paper losses sustained by Canadian listed and unlisted stocks amounted to more than $5,000,000,000. This is more than double the gross funded debt of the Dominion, or $55 per capita.

And yet, with a loss of more than five billion dollars, the people of Canada can go about their business with little more than the embarrassment of feeling sheepish over being had.

The truth is that no stock crash can knock the props out from beneath a country that has trillions of dollars in natural resources, both mapped and uncharted.

Linking Canada and Britain

British Post Office To Provide Direct Wireless Phone Service

Canada and Britain are to be linked by direct wireless telephone. The House of Commons recently debated the respective merits of the Marconi and the British post office wireless systems. Hon. H. B. Lees-Smith, postmaster-general, revealed that the Canadian government had expressed a desire for direct service.

The direct service will be provided by the post office. Arguing the general merits of the post office system as contrasted with Marconi, the postmaster-general said the lower costs of its service enabled it to give three wave lengths to each Dominion. The Marconi system provided two to most of the Dominions and only one for Australia.

The Problems Which Confront Agriculture In The West Now Are Vitally Aggressive

Prof. W. W. Swanson, M.A., Ph.D., professor of economics at the University of Saskatchewan, addressed members of the Canadian Club at a luncheon in Regina recently. Dr. Swanson took as his subject, "Wheat and Changing Agriculture."

"I think we should think less of our cherished principles as to how we can organize the life of the world on a co-operative basis and come back to hard realities," Dr. Swanson declared. He suggested the establishment of a wheat council or body composed of men representing the private individual as well as members of the Wheat Pool to determine a selling policy which would give the farmers the greatest net returns for what they produced from the soil.

"It is the duty of all of us to attempt to strengthen and maintain the morale of the Wheat Pool, to get the farmers behind this selling agency, because if it should collapse at this time, it would be fatal to the economic life of the west," he continued.

Describing wheat as the life-blood of commerce, the plasma of society, Dr. Swanson deplored the tactics of pessimists who were destroying the morale of the country rather than attempting to build up the strength of the faith of the community in wheat possibilities.

"I believe it is a good deal more important to explore all avenues of co-operation in our own country before we turn to the foreigner," Dr. Swanson remarked in stressing the importance of securing the best business brains and abilities to be placed at the disposal of the farming community.

The problems confronting agriculture in the west today were vitally aggressive, according to Dr. Swanson. A profound change had come over the texture of economic life, due to the introduction of power on the farms, the mechanization of the farms and the spread of the "city point of view" and the urbanization of the country.

"The agriculturist faces a battle today in which every ounce of courage, energy and morale is required to achieve success," Dr. Swanson pointed out.

The fundamental effect on marketing in Canada, of what occurs in the wheat markets of the United States was outlined by Dr. Swanson, who saw in the artificially built up co-operatives of that country the creation of a wheat surplus in that republic which, in turn, would affect the Canadian markets.

"Never under any circumstances can we avoid the factors of demand and supply. Problems we face in Canada are only part of a world-wide problem," Dr. Swanson asserted. "We must analyse the factors of demand and supply so that we can build up a marketing structure of stone and iron rather than straw."

Fleeting that a word of sympathy be established and strengthened between the men of the soil and the city-bred, Dr. Swanson also urged the maintenance of a rural point of view. "Our wishes, our hearts and our hopes are bound up in the rural point of view. If we lose this vision, we lose all that the pioneers of this west have built up."

Dr. Swanson saw, not the tragedy or wasted natural resources, but the waste of human life on the farms in the boys and the girls who were not to get an education this year, an opportunity to broaden themselves spiritually, traceable to the economic conditions of the country today as affecting agriculture.

The loyal marketing of wheat based on the real price of the world and the staunch support of the men who believe in the west, would build up the type of democracy required, in the opinion of Dr. Swanson.

Had Satisfactory Year

Western Canada Increased Dairy Production In 1929

Western Canada experienced a very satisfactory year with respect to dairying during 1929 according to annual returns now being made. Manitoba had an increase in production of creamy butter of more than 1,600,000 lbs., Saskatchewan records an increase in the same line of 30 per cent., while Alberta had an increase also of more than 1,600,000 lbs. Total value of all dairy products in the three western provinces for the year was $37,629,000. Alberta experienced the best year since 1924 in this respect with a total dairy products value of over $20,000,000. Saskatchewan's total was $12,982,000 and Manitoba's was $14,997,000. In eleven of the large exhibitions held throughout Canada during the past year, the prairie west captured 90 per cent. of all first prizes in butter, and 86 per cent. of all prizes, over half of which came to Manitoba.

Canada Won Second Place

King's Trophy For Rifle Shooting Efficiency Goes To South Africa. South Africa won the King's trophy of 1929 for rifle shooting efficiency. More than 40,000 boys in all parts of the Empire competed.

Canada ranked second, closely behind South Africa, while Great Britain came third and New Zealand fourth. Australia did not qualify. The results were announced by the National Rifle Association recently after careful compilation of the thousands of scores. It is the fourth South African victory out of five years.

The minimum number of boys competing in each Dominion is 3,000. South Africa scored 83.2 per head out of a possible 100. Canada stood second with 80.2 and Britain in third place was far behind with 69.5. The New Zealand average was 66.5. Australia showed only 1,365 boys competing.

The number of competitions was 40,150.

The National Rifle Association announced "Canada's excellent average showed an increase on her previous score of 2.6 per firer. The Dominion possesses a much larger number of really expert shots than any other country, and indeed, as many marksmen and first class shots as the winners, but the standard of mass proficiency is for similar numbers, below South Africa, although it shows marked improvement annually."

Canada has 72 silver and 172 bronze medals of honor, awarded to individuals making scores of 100 or 99 (silver), and 98 to 97 (bronze) respectively—a number in each case far in excess of the aggregate won by other Empire competitors and amateur competitors.

Famine Conditions In China

Three Hundred Tons Of Beans In Transit Which Will Save Lives Of Two Million People

Three hundred tons of beans, now being delivered for shipment from Shansu Province to the neighboring province of Shensi, in the famine-stricken area of North Central China, will save the lives of two million people, officers of the China famine relief have stated.

Over an area of about 450,000 square miles, embracing five provinces and a population of about 30 million, relief workers are struggling against what is described as the worst famine China has known in 70 years. Eight million dead is the toll which hunger has taken in the past two years during which famine has been continuous and growing.

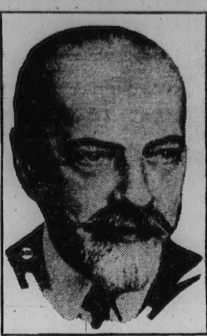

Crop failure occasioned by drought and aided by revolution and banditry which drew men away from the business of insuring a proper food supply, brought millions face to face with slow but certain annihilation. Figures in the story of the disaster are computed from the estimates of missionaries, press correspondents and agents of the relief committee, who have travelled extensively through the stricken area.

In a country where facilities for communication were so slow that 250,000 persons were killed in ten minutes by an earthquake without the rest of the world being aware of the fact, relief work is rendered most difficult. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, chairman of the national committee, explained to the Canadian Press.

Prizes For Good Seed

Saskatoon Board Of Trade Announces Interesting Competition

To encourage the growing of good seed, and to stimulate efforts to produce prize-taking exhibits for the World Grain Show, at Regina, in 1932, the Saskatoon Board of Trade has announced a $300 competition for wheat grown in 1930, to be exhibited some time during the winter, possibly at the 1931 winter fair. This will be open to farmers within a radius of 50 miles from Saskatoon.

The grain for this exhibition must be grown from third generation No. 1 Marquis, supplied by the board. Not less than six bushels will be supplied to any one farmer, and the price will be $1.95 per bushel f.o.b. Saskatoon.

Applications for seed should be sent immediately to Commissioner J. H. Holmes, at the Board of Trade offices.

Prize money will be divided as follows: First prize, $75; second, $50; third, $40; fourth, $25; fifth, $30; sixth, $25; seventh, $20; eighth, $15; ninth, $10; and 10 successive prizes of $5 each.

Indians and Eskimos

Easy To Distinguish Between The Two Races, Says Minister Of The Interior

Who shall decide who are Indians and who are Eskimos? This was the question asked by Sir George Perley, (Cons. Argenteuil), when the bill to amend the Indian Act was before the House of Commons. The bill amends the Indian Act to meet the change whereby Eskimo affairs were transferred from the superintendent general of Indian affairs to the commission of the North West Territories. Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of Interior, thought it was easy to distinguish Eskimos and even the most northerly Indians. The appearance of the Eskimo and language both distinguished them from the Indians.

General Currie Presents Strong Case For Great War Veterans Before Committee At Ottawa

The War Veterans' Allowance Act was social legislation, while the Pensions Act was a contractual relationship between the people of Canada and the soldier, consequently the two should not be confused, nor should the former be regarded as denying to the disabled ex-serviceman his right to claim for pension under the latter. This was one of the distinctions drawn by General Sir Arthur Currie, G.C.M.G., former commander of the Canadian Corps, who appeared before the special parliamentary committee returned soldiers' problems at Ottawa, and laid in front of that body the case for the ex-soldier.

Sir Arthur's presentation of the case on behalf of his former comrades created a deep impression, which was strengthened by the volume of support accorded to his views by the numerous speakers who followed him.

The wishes of the people of Canada with respect to the treatment of disabled soldiers had not been carried out, Sir Arthur said, in the manner desired by the people themselves. He did not attribute this failure to the pensions commissioners or to any of those vested with the administration of the act, but rather to the interpretation of the act and to the faulty machinery set up for its operation.

The former corps commander entered a plea for the "burned out" veteran, for whom no provision was made. He stressed the impossibility of such a man proving conclusively that his disabilities were due to war service, and equally was it impossible for the pensions board to prove that they were not. The responsibility in this regard should be shared and in every case the man should get the benefit of the doubt.

He had no brief for the malingerer, the man who claimed a pension and was not entitled to it, nor had any war veteran any sympathy with such a "leadswinger." But that did not alter the fact that a condition of dissatisfaction existed among the veterans and among the people of Canada, and that situation had to be faced.

Sir Arthur pointed to a number of defects in the pensions act, the chief of which was that it was a "legal document" and few returned soldiers understood such documents. The pensions board stood in the relationship of a court charged with the administration of this enactment and did not have the proper facilities at its disposal for the carrying out of this task. He suggested that the pensions commission be made an itinerant body. At present the board is stationary in Ottawa, while the appeal board is a travelling court. The situation should be reversed. He also asked that greater facilities be extended to soldiers to prepare their claims.

The former corps commander was emphatic in his opposition to the war veterans' allowance act being administered both by the pensions board and by the departmental committee, proposed by the bill. He cast no reflections upon the personnel of either body; but in the former case the pensions board would be dealing with something entirely outside their scope since the act was social legislation, while in the latter case departmental officers were subject to the direction of the minister who was himself subjected to many importunities. He thought that the Canadian Legion could administer the allowance to better advantage.

In the course of the hearing recently numerous ex-soldiers spoke. All represented various organizations; but in this case the soldiers had become unified and all their societies would have a common spokesman in Col. L. A. LaFleche, D.S.O., M.C., Dominion president of the Canadian Legion. A number of specific cases were cited wherein considerable hardship with no compensation was disclosed.

Munro, superintendent of the Portage Division, Winnipeg, to general superintendent of the Alberta District, at Edmonton, a number of changes in the operating department of the Canadian National Railways were announced recently in a circular issued by A. Millions Spent By Tourists

Statistics issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show that the tourist trade in Canada reached a new high level in 1929, resulting in an estimated expenditure by such tourists of approximately $300,000,000, an increase of more than $34,000,000 over 1928.

Competition In Cattle Trade

Britain Recently Imported Ninety Head From South Africa

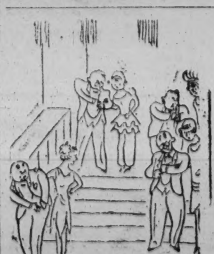

Apparently Canada will also find more competition in the livestock export trade to Britain. An initial shipment of live cattle from the Union of South Africa to Birkenhead has arrived recently, writes Harry A. Scott, Canadian trade commissioner in Liverpool. These cattle, which are understood to have come mainly from the Orange Free State province, and were shipped from Cape Town, numbered 90 head of short horns, but owing to tempestuous weather and the resultant late arrival of the vessel, eleven head had to be jettisoned. The majority of the consignment is reported to have arrived in good condition, apart from a certain loss in fat. Dealers who had the handling of the shipment at Birkenhead state that the cattle were, on the whole, the finest lot yet received from Africa, and quite suitable for British market requirements. After being slaughtered the beef was despatched to London and Manchester, the remainder being disposed of at Birkenhead and Liverpool.

CLEAN UP!

There is no sure sign of spring, but spring should be a "surprise" of the arrival of that time for the community to clean up. There is no superstition or prophesying about this clean up sign.When warm weather has come to stay every owner of property and tenant should instinctively feel it his duty to remove the evidences of winter's ravages and to aid and augment nature's work of re-augmentation.Every spring clean up program should include disposal of winter's accumulation of litter and decayed vegetation, repairing and repainting of buildings, and landscape gardening. Landscape gardening is no longer associated with large estates alone.Cleanliness about the person or the home costs nothing. A community clean-up need involve no expense, except of a moderate amount of labor on the part of the householders. If there were excuses for an "excuse" they have been removed long ago.What is the compensation of a community-wide clean-up campaign?
It improves the general health of the community by removing deposits that are breeding places of disease germs and disease carrying insects. A clean town is a better place in which to live
than one that is unsanitary and unpleasant. And the best community advertising is the appearance of being "cleaned up, painted-up and planted-up."

WHY NOT TELL THE PEOPLE

The Alberta legislature make many laws and introduce amendments to other laws, that make it rather difficult for the average man to keep in touch with the multitude of restrictions placed upon the statute books.
Not long ago auto drivers' licenses were added to the list, and there are probably many people who are not aware of such a law. Trainers' licenses must be secured, shooting licenses must be paid for, and the farmer cannot even sell eggs direct to the consumer without infringing an Alberta law. It looks as if we are tremendously burdened with laws and restrictions that make it difficult to live a law abiding life. However, with these laws included in our state
books, why not the government appraise the people of their laws by publishing a synopsis of same in the country newspapers.As a consequence of the lack of publicity many law abiding citizens are, innocently violating the laws of the land. The sane way of advising the public of these new pieces of legislation is through the press of the province.—Innisfail Province.

PROVINCIAL EMBLEM

THEME OF POEM

(From The Viking News)

Miss Lily Duke, teacher at Alice Hill school, has written the following lines of poetry to the new provincial emblem, the wild rose, which we are pleased to reproduce herewith:

TO THE WILD ROSE

Up and down our roadways,
Through our fields, along our fences,
Flushed with sunshine,
Tipping dewdrops,
Drinking rain showers,
Breathing freshness
Roams our little pink-clad emblem
Our Lady Pioneer.Nothing seems to daunt you.
Winter's frosts, or hail, or wind storm
Deep from snowdrifts
Glean your berries, Pricking bright their Scarlet signalsDaring hardships, braving dangers,
Our Lady Pioneer.How so hopeful little lady,
Face so fair, and spirit hardy?
Golden hearted,
Carefree, fearless,Flashing forth your Wholesome welcome:
"Come and toll, a home awaits you."
Our Lady Pioneer.Never leave us dainty spirit,
Ever stay to cheer and comfort,
By our windows,
In our gardens,
Through our churchyards,
On our tombstonesScatter soft your lovely petals,
Our Lady Pioneer.

Wheat Pool As Never Before

(From The Viking News)

Over two hundred farmers and business men attended the wheat pool meeting held in Jensen's hall last Wednesday evening.The meeting being presided over by B. C. Gilpin got away to an early start and after a few pointed remarks called on A. Holmberg, delegate to the wheat pool convention for a report which he gave in an efficient manner. Mr. Holmberg said the way to raise the price of wheat was to raise better wheat and take better care of the land.The principal speaker was Mr. Geo.
Bennett, wheat pool director for District G. He deplored the attendance of so few ladies saying they had a harder time on the farm than the men and they should be vitally interested in the pool. He apologized for not being present upon three previous occasions when he had advertised to speak here but had sent some good substitutes.He said that all farmers should be pretty well informed in regard to the wheat pool by this time, through C.
L.E.A. paper, radio and news items
in the local paper.

Selling End Important

While the growing of wheat was important he said, the selling end was the most important. What was the use of growing wheat if you got no price?He explained the process of mixing wheat and stated that all wheat was sold on a standard basis. Revisions were being made to the Canada Grain Act that would raise the standard of outgoing grades from terminal elevators, and advised the U. F. A.
and wheat pool leaders to study the Grain Act at their meetings. He also announced the standard of No. 3
and No. 4 grades are to be raised.

Final Payment

Everybody was waiting for some hopeful word of a big final payment, but he held out no hope for an early payment and when it comes, if any it may be a small one. The officials are trying to force sales.

Present Conditions

In spite of present conditions and the trying times the wheat pool is going through, the officials are being backed by the farmers as never before, and many new contracts are being received daily. The wheat pool he said, has the confidence of the people.The wheat pool had been blamed for the present slump, but the speaker argued that if it had not been for the pool, conditions would have been even worse. Causes of the depression in wheat prices was the big 1929 crop in Europe, high tariff to meet crop in Europe, collapse of Wall street and local speculation. He declared that more money had been lost in the home district of Clarendon by speculation than the whole crop was worth.
Conditions were somewhat the same in all districts.He did not deny that the wheat pool had bought wheat. In May they bought about five million bushels to save the market at $1.07 and sold later at $1.40. Not so bad.Argentine wheat was put on the market in a lump and left the docks unsold and had to be sold before landing. British buyers got it at their own price. All this had a bad effect on the sale of Canadian wheat.

The Prospects

In spite of rumors to the contrary the European countries were low in wheat and were using substitutes to quell an extent. Statistics showed there had never been four consecutive bumper crops and the European countries were probably due for a short crop.Our own prospects for a crop were not particularly bright either. The land was never so dry in the history of the province and moisture was needed badly. Conditions at present did not point to a bumper crop.There was something wrong with economic conditions when Chinese were starving by the thousands while this continent held millions of bushels of wheat that the Chinese were unable to buy.He advised trying to raise the quality of wheat. He stated plainly that the millers did not want Garret wheat as it had poor milling and baking qualities. He hoped Roward wheat would bear out the good things said of it, but it was infected with smut. If you want to try Roward wheat get it from Beaverlodge experimental farm. Soy seed suitable to the district was his final advice on this matter.Dealing with the situation in Russia
he told of the efforts of the government to grow wheat under a military system of supervision. It might suggest, if it did, Russia would be in a position to place a lot of wheat on the market.The way to succeed, he concluded,
was to cut the costs of production,
and the only way was to organize the buying as well as the selling power of the farmers. Here he quoted the effect the C.F.A.'s investigation into the cost of oil, the organization of the oil buying pool, and the subsequent drop in the price of oil. Lumber prices came also under fire and he instanced a case where he bought lumber at Edmonton at half the price he had to pay at Mannville, through co-operative buying.At the conclusion of his talk he answered a large number of questions from the audience that cleared up many points of discussion.It was undoubtedly the best pool meeting ever held here and that interest in the pool is not lagging on account of present conditions. Farmers are rallying to the pool as never before, and any success it has or may attain is due to their own efforts.Patrons and guests of the King Edward hotel receive a delightful surprise when they enter the lobby of the hotel these days. The office has been completely changed around, the counter and desk moved up to the front, the telephone booth placed in private nook under the stairs, the large coal stove removed and replaced with a comfortable looking gas heater, and new inlaid linoleum of an attractive pattern covers the entire floor.Other improvements on the main floor is the addition of a serving room and the installation of an up-to-date wash room and toilet. The beer parlor has been remodeled and is fitted up in the approved manner with new bent wood chairs, cork linoleum on the floor and the addition of other facilities complying with the provisions of the Act.The first and second floors, the guest rooms and the ladies' parlor on the first floor have also seen the magic touch of paint, new rugs and furniture. There is running hot and cold water on every floor, with bath room conveniences for guests. Thruout the entire building there is an air of cleanliness and evidence of efficient management.Mr. W. E. Henton, the new proprietor, is certainly to be commended for his enterprise since taking over the hotel a month ago, and we understand further improvements are contemplated.With the assistance of Mr.
Henton and a courteous staff in every department, Mr. Henton can well feel that he has the approval of the travelling public, and an hotel that is a credit to the community.The car in which Messrs. O. Sloan, Geo. Loades and M. Meeton were returning from Edmonton on Saturday afternoon, skidded in the loose gravel about six miles east of Fort Saskatchewan and before coming to a stop overturned. The driver O.
Sloan, escaped practically unhurt, while Geo. Loades received some bruises about the face and a broken bone in his right hand. Mr. Meeton received quite a cut on the face. The gravel on this stretch of road is very loose and accidents of this kind are quite common before the gravel is packed.Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hjeswold and son Martin were visitors at the Bir-tylso home near Ryley over Sunday.
While the farms in the Ryley district are considered very good, they said they prefer the local district for mixed farming.Mrs. A. Kastor entertained four tables at bridge last Thursday evening at her home. Prizes were won by Mrs. Rollans and Mrs. Dodds. A delicious lunch was served and a very enjoyable evening was spent.Mr. and Mrs. O. Fitzmaurice and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Green attended the banquet held at the MacDonald hotel, Edmonton, last Wednesday evening for employees and executives of the Northwestern Utilities.Wm. Brown has returned from the Peace River district where he has spent the last two months and is now visiting with relatives and friends in this district.Const. Miller spent part of last week assisting the police in Edmonton during several parades the unemployed made to the parliament buildings.Good Friday, April 18th, will be a holiday in town. Easter Monday is not observed locally as a holiday by the stores and business places.Little Jack Sheets is suffering from a badly mangled hand as the result of a boyish prank played with a loaded shot gun shell and a small piece of pipe, last Saturday afternoon.
He and some companions were going to shoot some crows, and had rammed the shotgun shell into the end of the pipe. While one of the boys hit the end of the pipe with the shot in it, Jack held the pipe. When the shell exploded, the pipe burst with the result that Jack's hand was severely cut up instead of the crow. He is receiving medical attention.

NOTICE RE SOLDIER SETTLER SEED GRAIN LOANS

(From The Viking News)
Last week The News carried an item to the effect that arrangements had been made with the Municipalities to supply seed grain to soldier settlers if application was O.K'd by the district supervisor.

This brought out some discussion and perhaps some misunderstanding, and to clear the matter up, J. H. McLellan, secretary of the local Canadian Legion wired the Board at Ottawa, and received the following in reply:

"Board will provide seed grain upon recommendation of supervisor and district office where municipalities or banks refuse."

As a result of the play the Batts school has a permanent platform which would be an asset to any school, especially where a number of programs are put on every year. This platform which was built by donated labor by members of the district is made in three sections. This makes it very convenient to take in or out.

A gas lamp will also be added as a result of the play.

British Medical Association

More Funds Required To Finance Big Meeting To Be Held In Winnipeg

The committee of medical men in Winnipeg who are in charge of the arrangements for the meeting of the British Medical Association in that city next summer, have requested the members of parliament, particularly Dr. J. P. Howden, of St. Boniface, to ask the Federal Government for more financial assistance.

The meeting of the British Medical Association will be an event of historic importance. It is 24 years since the association met in Canada, the last occasion being in 1906 when the meeting took place in Toronto.

It is estimated that the cost of looking after the delegates, providing entertainment for them and suitable accommodation for their sessions, will be $60,000. It is understood here that this does not cover the expenses of the delegates in any way, shape or form. Each delegate will come from Great Britain at his own expense.

So far the Federal Government has agreed to give $20,000 to the committee. It is believed that the provincial government of Manitoba is giving $10,000. And the city of Winnipeg $10,000. This will leave $20,000 to be found. The Canadian Medical fraternity are subscribing privately to a fund to be used for the meeting, but it is thought that in order to make the event certain of success a further Federal grant is desirable. Dr. Howden, probably will ask for a supplementary vote of from $3,000 to $10,000.

The new fitted blipline, swathed in Grecian manner, makes this printed crepe frock very desirable.

The neckline is generally becoming in deep open V, finished with rolled collar of plain harmonizing crepe.

The neckline achieves a flutty richness through the gradual widening of the circular skirt that moulds the figure through the hips.

Plain crepe silk and light weight woollens appropriate.

Summer Tours

National Railways Makes Ready For The Holiday Season

As the sun gains in strength and the days begin gradually, almost tentatively, to put on length, thoughts of summer crop up. With many they are thoughts of golf, with others they mean the seashore, the mountains, the woods, the lakes—travel. Escorted tours that relieve the traveller of all the irksome responsibility of details become more and more popular, according to C. W. Johnston, general passenger traffic manager, Canadian National Railways, who was discussing the system's plans for the coming summer.

Seven personally-conducted all-expense tours have already been arranged, he stated, and they will take in all parts of Canada.

Two will explore the Maritimes; four will cross Canada from either Montreal or Toronto, and one from Winnipeg.

The first to get under way will be the Pitman Maritime tour, which will leave Montreal on June 27th. Occupying 17 days, the itinerary will take in Quebec, St. Anne de Beaupre, Montserrat Falls, as well as all the principal cities and towns of the provinces by the Atlantic. There will be a steamer trip through the Bras d'Or Lakes to Cape Breton, a motor trip of 150 miles through the land of Evangeline, and another hundred miles through Prince Edward Island.

One of the most important tours of the summer will be that organized under the auspices of "The New Outlook," which will leave Toronto June 28th, and will cover 5,000 miles by rail, 1,850 miles by steamer, and 350 miles by automobile. Both railways will be used and among the spots to be visited will be Jasper National Park. The "Pilgrims" will travel between Vancouver and Prince Rupert by Canadian National steamer and will also visit the Peace River Country.

The ninth annual personally conducted tour of the Canadian National System will leave Winnipeg on July 2nd, crossing the prairies to the Pacific Coast and including the boat trip along the "Inside Passage."

On July 10 and July 16th, respectively, the Adams and Pitman "Across-Canada" tours will leave Montreal, on the way to Minak, Jasper National Park, Wainwright and the Pacific Coast. The first will be for 24 days and the second 25. Western Canada will also be visited by the Kerr-Bryson sixth annual tour, which is due to leave Toronto on July 9th.

All features of the Maritimes will come before those who become members of the Adams Maritime tour, leaving Toronto on August 5th, and Montreal, August 7th.

From Lima, Peru has come the first acceptance of the invitation to participate in the exhibition. Due to its diversified climate, practically every agricultural product known to man can be raised within the borders of Peru.

The first prize of $2,500 for wheat, the largest cash prize for any kind of grain offered at any exhibition has aroused the interest of grain growers all over the world.

There is but one class in the Hemp section for seed of any variety. The exhibit must bear the variety name and consists of 30 pounds. There are twenty prizes for Hemp seed grading from $75 down to $12.

Wage War On Insects

Relentless Campaign To Be Carried On This Year By Government Entomologists

While the Five Power Conference is in session in London considering ways and means for promoting world peace, active preparations are under way in Canada for launching another war with relentless fury. Millions of casualties will result from this war, which is timed to start sometime next May.

Every year, Canadian Government entomologists declare war on the insect pests that, unless checked, would work incalculable damage to trees, plants and crops.

The scenes of battles extend throughout Canada and no quarter is given by the scientists in the fight. It is a war in which all international pacts and treaties are ignored and only the most poisonous gases and lethal poisons are used generously. This year the entomologists have planned intensive campaigns against grasshoppers, the wheat stem sawfly, wireworms, the pale western cutworm, and his ally the red-backed cutworm, the bertha armyworm, the early cutworm, the Colorado potato beetle, the imported cabbage butterfly, and the root maggot. They also have a special organization to attack the forest pests, including the aphid on maple, willow and elm, the spruce spider mite, the forest tent caterpillar and the box elder leaf roller and twig borer.

Last year the entomologists of the Canadian Government Department of Agriculture claimed a decisive victory over their enemies.

Better Feed Standards

New Regulations Require a More Careful Elimination Of Weed Seeds

Better feed oats and barley is assured by the new regulations of the seed branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, which require a more careful elimination of weed seeds. Under these new regulations, while wild oats and other grains present are taken into consideration, the quality of the grain itself now mainly determined the grade.

In the past there have been frequent complaints, especially from the eastern feeders, of the excess of weed seeds contained in feed grain from the west. Under the grain inspection practices now in force even the lowest grades of feed oats and barley may have not more than 3 per cent. of weed seeds.

With this new system of inspection in operation, eastern feeders will be able to buy oats and feed barley on certificate, and with much greater assurance as to the cleanliness and quality of the grain so purchased.

DO YOU SUFFER FROM CONSTIPATION?

Countless remedies are advertised for constipation. Many relieve for the moment but they are habit forming and must be continued. Others contain calomel and dangerous mineral drugs, which remain in the system, settle in the joints and cause aches and pains. Some are harsh purgatives which cramp and gripe and leave a depressed after effect. Avoid lubricating oils which only grease the intestines and encourage nature's machinery to become lazy.

A purely vegetable laxative such as Carter's Little Liver Pills, gently touches the liver, bile starts to flow, the bowels move gently, the intestines are thoroughly cleaned and constipation poisons pass away. The stomach, liver and bowels are now active and the system enjoys a real tonic effect. All druggists 25c and 75c per pkg.

Six Hundred Pound Nugget From Northern Hinterland To Be Sent To National Museum

A 600-pound nugget of native copper will shortly be added to the national museum exhibits. The nugget was found at Husky Creek, in the Coronation Gold district, by Major L. T. Burwash, of the Yukon and North West Territories branch of the Department of the Interior on August 4 last year.

When he found the lump of copper, Major Burwash carved his initials on it and made arrangements to have it transported by dog sled from Husky Creek to Coronation, Gold-station, from where it will be brought to Ottawa by rail and boat. It will probably arrive in October.

"I forgot you didn't know I was here to supper. I invited myself; and we ate in the front room so as not to miss any of the excitement! I washed the dishes while Grandma got ready for our spree. I tell you, she's some sport!"

Charman joined in his laugh, though what she felt was a sudden desire for tears. She couldn't have said just why, but a wave of tenderness for this old friend had overwhelmed her. Jim was so kind, she told herself. What other man would have washed those dishes just to save her a little trouble? What other man would have jolled an old lady all the evening, when he could have been with the young folks at the church festival? What did it matter if he was a bit under his mother's thumb?

"Possibly the young man felt her yielding in some subtle way, for he said suddenly: 'The moon will be full tomorrow night, won't it? Will you go for a ride, Charman?'"

They both turned at a sound behind them. The new doctor stood in the doorway, hesitating to interrupt, perhaps, but at any rate he came forward bravely and dropped the gray crepe shawl over the girl's shoulders.

"Your grandmother says you'll 'take your death of cold,' he explained, with a grin that made him very boyish; and Charman replied, laughing:

"Did she think I was going to stay out till morning? Good-night, Jim. Thanks for everything; and of course I'll go for a ride tomorrow evening. I'd love it."

Jim, who had been cursing the innocent doctor beneath his breath, and thinking that Charman hadn't noticed his invitation, went off in such a daze that he barely escaped colliding with a lamp post.

Grandma Davis seemed none the worse for her outing. She was up for breakfast, and eager to hear the news.

"You tell me everything about the supper," she demanded, as Charman poured the coffee. "Did you have a good time, Doctor? And was that Darling girl upset because her young man didn't show up? Did she wear the hat?"

"She did," answered the doctor. "In fact, it was the first thing that caught my eye when we arrived. It's not a bad hat, really, and, as your granddaughter pointed out, it is becoming; but if the young lady was disturbed because you cut her out last night, she concealed it well."

Charman threw him a laughing glance.

"Miss Darling found fresh hunting, Grandma," she explained. "Poor Jimmy was forgotten."

"You flatter me," retorted the doctor, arising to make her sweeping bow; while Grandma exclaimed as he resumed his seat:

"Do you mean to say that she made eyes at you, Doctor? She must be brazen!"

"Am I so impossible as all that?" he asked reproachfully.

Grandma shook her head as she went on: "But you're a doctor, even if you haven't got one foot in the grave yet, and—and dignified."

"Good Lord!" he cried, disgusted, "I didn't suspect it!"

"For consolation, let me add that you are not too dignified," smiled Grandma. "Surely not enough so to resent the advances of—I remember."

"Charman," reproved her grandmother, "you shouldn't talk so so freely to the doctor. Of course he's dignified. A doctor has to be or folks wouldn't take his medicine. Even Edward Howe is dignified when he's a mind to be, though I remember years ago when—well, maybe it isn't nice for me to tell it, but I remember when he threw a spit ball at the teacher. It was at District Four."

"I venture to guess that the teacher deserved it," said John Carter, his eyes brimming with fun.

"That was the worst of it," went on Grandma seriously, "she didn't, though no one would have guessed it till she burst crying. She'd been snapping the children's heads off for two days, and when Edward threw the spit ball, sort of to relieve everybody's feelings as well as his, it was the last straw. She began to cry, and came to find out her mother was sick and she was worried most to death."

"Afraid to ask leave to go home at that time of year for fear she'd lose her job, and feeling dreadfully. She was so stirred up she just burst out the whole story to us children. I suppose she hardly knew what she was doing, and it was a relief to say what was in her mind."

"Well, you better believe that boy was ashamed of himself. He apologized right before us all, and he patted that poor woman on the shoulder, for all the world the way, years after, I've seen him pat his patients when he was sorry for 'em. Mercy! how clear it all comes back! Kate Knowles (she was George's aunt and the girl that Edward Howe was engaged to later), was crying in sympathy; and so was Lizzie Baker, though she wasn't but six years old. But Deacon Howe was on the school board then, and when Edward went home and told the story, his father gave the teacher a month's leave, and she went off that very afternoon."

"Did her mother die?" asked Charman, who invariably became absorbed in Grandma's reminiscences.

"No, child, she got better and came to live in Wickfield. They were real nice folks, and stayed here till the daughter got a school in Portland. Dear me! here I wanted to hear about the festival, and instead I've been talking every minute, boring you to death most likely, too. Are you going to finish fixing the doctor's office this morning, Charman?"

"I'm going to fix it myself," declared the doctor, "if your granddaughter will tell me what to do. I'm thrilled at that office, Mrs. Davis. It's a dream come true."

"Maybe you'd better call me Grandma to start with," said the old lady. "When he returned she was smiling over 'Pep's' Diary," and remarked wickedly: "I think I'll take this in to Grandma. I'd like to see how she'd react to it, wouldn't you?"

"Hans! she read it?"

"I don't believe so, and her comments might be valuable! I'm glad to see that you're a devotee of Sherlock Holmes,"—and Dickens. I think there's hope for you despite the dignity that Grandma mentioned."

He actually flushed.

"Say, do I put on airs—behave like an idiot or anything?"

Charman laughed.

"I seem to have got a 'rise' out of you," she said. "Don't worry. I haven't detected any airs, nor the first sign of idiocy. In Grandma's day a doctor never appeared in public without a full beard and a frock coat. She was shocked to death when Doctor Howe began to dress like a civilized being and shaved off his whiskers; but in her eyes he can do no wrong. Because he brought you here you'll appear the ideal M.D. to her, dignity and all. That's why she was appalled at the brazenness of—the green hat!"

The doctor laughed as he replied: "Poor old hat! It seems to have stirred up a tempest in a teapot."

"It is a new hat," corrected Charman, "and a tempest isn't a patch on what it has stirred up."

He raised his eyes quickly.

A Public Danger

Caught Disease On the HANDS!

Skin disease threatens us every day. Invisible germs of blood-poison, eczema, etc., are waiting to infect the least cut or sore place. The money you use carries germs—you get them on the handles, rails and straps of the trains and street cars, and in a score of other ways. Soiled with Zambuk, Mr. Henry C. Davis, of South 17th Street, Kansas City, U.S.A., has just escaped a virulent type of eczema, contracted, he suspects, through use of public towels.

"I had a bad case," he says, "and in addition all sorts of so-called eczema remedies, without finding the hoped-for relief. Zambuk treatment soon gave positive results. It took away the painful irritation and quickly purified and healed the deep troublesome sores."

Mrs. to me, and it don't sound natural. Everybody calls me Grandma, even Edward Howe who was only two years back of me in school. Folks in Wickfield might not know who you meant if you said Mrs. Davis."

"It's very good of you to let me be Grandma," answered the young man, smiling. "It makes me feel like one of the family."

"That's how I want you to feel, sonny," she responded; while Charman laughed and said:

"Is that the way to address a dignified physician?" I'm surprised at you, Grandma! Sooner as I get these dishes out of the way, Doctor, I'll join you in the office; and in the meantime you can carry the biggest books up attic. By afternoon you'll be ready for your first patient. Aren't you thrilled at the thought?"

"I shall be most thrilled when he arrives!" answered John Carter. "Here's hoping I don't starve while waiting for him."

Grandma shook her head.

"I never was one to be a wet-blanket; but you may as well swallow the right of it that Wickfield folks are set in their ways, and they're used to Edward Howe. Isn't that some one in the shop? I heard the door open. You lend me a hand, sonny, and I'll see to 'em so Charman can get right to work."

A half hour later when Charman looked in at the new office, John Carter was unwrapping a box of his own books and placing them on the shelves.

"Let me lend them to you," she suggested. "You know where you want to put them, and I don't." She glanced at the back of a big volume, and said, so soberly that the doctor laughed: "Gray's Anatomy. What a horrible title! Do you know, I can't help feeling sorry for these shelves, supporting such dry subjects for years and years. I think I'll present you with some detective stories, or something jazzy in the way of novels. A risqué volume might be a relief to these poor shelves after being so decently respectable for fifty years."

First the ponderous law weighing them down, and now—

She sighed despairingly as she wiped the dust from "Osler's Practice," and held it out.

"Bring on your Jazz," invited John Carter as he reached for the despised volume. "If I dare say I need it, after a pretty steady diet of the other hand. But I believe you'll find one or two less hopeless subjects in that last box. Let's empty it here on the desk, and then I'll carry off the packing cases and we can clear up."

When he returned she was smiling over "Pep's" Diary," and remarked wickedly: "I think I'll take this in to Grandma. I'd like to see how she'd react to it, wouldn't you?"

"Hans! she read it?"

"I don't believe so, and her comments might be valuable! I'm glad to see that you're a devotee of Sherlock Holmes,"—and Dickens. I think there's hope for you despite the dignity that Grandma mentioned."

He actually flushed.

"Say, do I put on airs—behave like an idiot or anything?"

Charman laughed.

"It is a new hat," corrected Charman, "and a tempest isn't a patch on what it has stirred up."

He raised his eyes quickly.

"What do you mean? You sound subtle; and I warn you that subtlety is a quality I can't abide."

London Bus Driver Emigrates

Solves Traffic Jam Problems By Breaking Away To Wide Open Spaces Of Western Canada

It took twenty-one years for A. W. J. Powell, bus-driver, to weary of the whirl and roar of London traffic and break away to the great open spaces. But at last the bus yielded to the plow, and this spring will find Powell on the land somewhere in the prairie.

His sons had a great deal to do with it. Alfred Arthur Edward, who is twenty, came to Canada in 1926, and liked the country so well that he persuaded a younger brother, William Henry Charles, to join him the following year. Places were found in Ontario for the two boys by the Canadian National Railways. Their experiences convinced the father that it was time to forsake the bus, and arrangements were therefore made by the European Colonization Organization of the Canadian National Railways for the family to sail for Canada in March. The Winnipeg office will help them decide where to make their future home.

Before leaving London, Powell confessed that he had always had a hankering for a farm.

"I like bus driving first rate, but the traffic jams in London are a bit of a nuisance. The best way to solve the traffic problem is to move out of it, and I'm told there aren't many traffic jams out on the Canadian prairies. I always had in my mind's eye a place of my own in one of the prairie towns."

Powell was one of the many London bus-drivers who drove London buses in France during the war, and he was one of the forty who went to Buckingham Palace in 1919, to be received by the King.

Report Of Immediate Train Service To Churchill Is Denied By C.N.R.

The report which has gained newspaper circulation that the Canadian National Railways will inaugurate regular passenger and freight service between The Pas and Churchill in April is incorrect according to A. A. Manning, general manager, western region, Canadian National Railways.

The report which emanated from The Pas apparently found its beginning in the intention of the company to move to Churchill, in the near future, and supplies which are required by the Government for the construction of dock and elevator facilities at Churchill this summer. The last ninety miles of the line to Churchill has received only the first lift of ballast and it will have to be given a second lift before it can be turned over by the construction to the operating department for regular service. Ballasting work can only be done when the weather moderates and it is not expected that the line will be ready for the operation of passenger trains until well on into the summer and no scheduled passenger or freight service is under contemplation by the company at the present time beyond Mile 326.

With so thorough a preparation at hand as Miller's Worm Powders, the mother who allows her children to suffer from the ravages of worms is unwise and culpably careless.

A child subject to the attack of worms is always unhealthy, and will be stunted in its growth. It is a fearful act to rid it of these destructive parasites, especially when it can be done without difficulty.

Finishes Big Task

Worker-Poet Of 76 Fats Whole Bible Into Verse

The entire Bible has been rewritten into poetry, making 6,000 closely written pages, six sacks full of manuscript, by William Houston, 76 years old, a working man at Cincinnati.

Houston's Bible is a rhymed version of the historic Bishop Bible which dates back to 1537. He has studied all the old Bibles in the Public Library there and knows thousands of lines by heart.

His verse is the old-fashioned, "rhyme royal," with stanzas of seven lines, and in the quaint English of hundreds of years ago, which he mastered by studies of Chaucer and Spenser.

For any BABY

We can never be sure just what makes an infant restless, but the remedy can always be the same. Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation, and not the slightest harm in its frequent use. As often as Baby has a fretful spell, is feverish, or cries and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Sometimes constipation. Or diarrhea—a condition that should always be checked without delay. Just keep Castoria handy, and give it promptly. Relief will follow very promptly; if it doesn't, you should call a physician.

All through babyhood, Castoria should be a mother's standby; and a wise mother does not change to stronger medicines as the child grows older. Castoria is readily obtained at any drugstore, and the genuine easily identified by the Chas. H. Fletcher signature that appears on every wrapper.

Produces Artificial Fever

Scientist Tells Of Possibilities Of New Discovery

Discovery of a new short length wave, that may easily be developed into a death ray, but also may have great curative properties, was announced, at Philadelphia, by E. L. Manning, of the General Electric Company's research laboratories.

Speaking before the Engineers' Club of Philadelphia, Mr. Manning said:

"We have learned to build vacuum tubes which will broadcast such a short length wave that people in the neighborhood will have their blood temperatures raised. This means that we can produce artificial fever and hold it under control, within any limits we choose."

Manning stated that if natural fever was "an attempt on the part of the body to kill off bacteria that attack it, as is believed, this new discovery may prove of startling value in the treatment of disease."

The ray, Manning said, could easily be used to induce such a high fever in human beings that it would result in death.

"We are experimenting with rabbits and rats," said Mr. Manning, "and the results are most encouraging. Diseases corresponding to those of humans appear to have been eliminated by these artificial fevers," he said.

Alberta Coal Production

Coal Mines Of Province Produced 7,147,550 Tons In Year 1929

Alberta coal mines produced 7,147,550 tons of coal, valued at $22,491,081 during the year 1929, according to the annual report of A. A. Millar, chief inspector of mines for the province. In addition to the coal mined there were 77,197 tons of shale mined from which 26,077,732 bricks were manufactured.

Combine-Harvested Wheat

Combined-harvested wheat in Canada compares very favourably with binder-harvested wheat from a milling and baking standpoint. In general no difference could be observed between the two in regard to these qualities, although in one season at least the combine-harvested wheat was slightly superior to the binder-harvested wheat.

Little Helps For This Week

"Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and He shall sustain thee."—Psalm lv. 22.

Child of my love, lean hard, And let me feel the pressure of thy care.

I know thy burden, child; I shaped it. Poised it in mine own hand, and made no proportion.

In its weight to thine unaided strength; For even as I laid it on I said, I shall be near, and while she leans on me

So shall I keep my child within the circling arms Of mine own love. Here lay it down, nor fear

To impose it upon a shoulder which upholds The government of worlds. Yet closer come.

Thou art near enough; I would embrace thy child, my child, my child, So I might feel My child reposing on my breast.

Thou lovest Me? I know it. Doubt not then. But loving Me lean hard.

—Paul Pastnor.

He that takes his own cares upon himself loads himself in vain with an uneasy burden.—Bishop Hall.

HEALTHY CHILDREN ALWAYS SLEEP WELL

The healthy child sleeps well and during its waking hours is never cross but always happy and laughing and spreads sunshine to the whole household. It is only the sickly child that is cross and peevish. Mothers if your children do not sleep well, if they are cross and cry a great deal do not scold them. That is their way of telling you they are ill. When baby is like this give him Baby's Own Tablets and he will soon be well and happy again. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach, banish constipation and indigestion, break up colds and simple fevers and promote healthful sleep. They are absolutely guaranteed free from opiates and other harmful drugs and may be given to the new-born babe with perfect safety and good results.

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all dealers in medicine or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Wastebasket

"Why do you call that hired man 'Wheelbarrow'?" asked a citizen of a local business man. "Because he's no good unless he's pushed," was the reply.

"I've made up my mind to stay home tonight, dear," said a local husband to his wife last evening. "Well, I've made up my face to go out to-night," she replied.

Modern mystery—What is it that the board of censors cut out of the movie plays?

"Your honor, I claim the release of my client on the grounds that he is insane; he is a stupid fool, an idiot, and he is not responsible for any act he has committed," declared a young lawyer in court. "He doesn't look stupid to me," said the judge. "Your honor," said the defendant, "look at the lawyer I hired."

Heard at the lodge: "How did you find your wife when you came home so late after the last meeting?" "Oh, she was as nice as pie." "How's that?" "Short and crisp."

"I took that recipe out of the cook book," said a young bride here proudly to her husband as she placed a cake on the table. "Yes," he replied tasting it, "and you did quite right, darling. It never should have been put in."

Wednesday, April 9th was the anniversary of the battle of Vimy Ridge when in 1917 many of the Irma boys so gallantly assisted in turning the then advancing German army. On this memorable day Canadian heroes filled the headlines in all Canadian and American papers.

At Albert school at night a full house was very much appreciated by the speakers, and on Friday, April 4th, two meetings were held in the afternoon at Roseberry school. There was a small but very enthusiastic gathering. At night in Simmons Hall Holmberg, the delegate for this district, gave a very good talk on the workings of the Pool in general at all the meetings. Mr. Ashton addressed some of the meetings on the Elevator department of the Pool.

Mr. J. Watson, the field man for the Edmonton district, gave a very detailed summary of the marketing of Pool wheat, and world conditions in the wheat market, emphasizing the difficulty in disposing of the 1928 crop, and explained that out of the total of 233,102,585 bushels handled that season, 46 per cent was below No. 4 grade. Mr. Watson gave such a good explanation of the Pool's activities that it was hardly necessary for the audience to ask many questions as he covered the subject so thoroughly.

All the speeches were well received and at the finish a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speakers at all meetings which showed that the members as a whole have confidence in the actions of the Pool.

Do You Drive a "Four" or a "Six"

SIX CYLINDER CARS
There are about 800 explosions in each cylinder per minute, at 30 miles per hour in a "Six". If you drive a "Six" four hours a day, all week, there are over 8,000,000 Explosions!

FOUR CYLINDER CARS
There are about 800 explosions in each cylinder per minute in a "four". If you drive a four about four hours each day, seven days a week, there are over 5,000,000 explosions.

The red hot hammering of these millions of explosions warp the valves, maybe burn them, and fading motor power can be traced more often to old-worn-warped-burned-leaky valves, than to any other cause.

OUR VALVE AND SEAT RECONDITIONING WILL RESTORE THIS FADING POWER THAT SHOULD BE REACHING YOUR DRIVE-SHAFT.
